

NHS Test and Trace

See the update on GOV.UK and the link to NHS test and trace: how it works for an overview of the NHS test and trace service, including what happens if you test positive for coronavirus (COVID-19) or have had close contact with someone who has tested positive.

See NHS test and trace: workplace guidance for guidance on the NHS test and trace service for employers, businesses and workers.

HM Government

NHS Test and Trace

Book a test if you have at least one of the most common COVID-19 symptoms

The main symptoms are:

- a high temperature
- a new, continuous cough
- a loss or change to your sense of smell or taste

If you have any coronavirus symptoms you must isolate immediately for 10 days. Don't wait for a test or a test result before doing so.

If you're identified as a contact of a positive case, you must isolate for the full 14 days (even if for some reason you got a negative test during that period).

If you test positive for COVID-19 or are contacted by NHS Test and Trace, it is a legal requirement to self-isolate. Failure to comply with these requirements, including employers who don't allow employees to self-isolate, may result in a fine of at least £1,000 and up to £10,000 for a repeated or serious offence. Full guidance on self-isolation is available on GOV.UK.

If you don't have symptoms, don't get a test

If you don't have coronavirus symptoms and have not been advised to take a test by a doctor, a public health professional or your local council, you should not book a test.

Do not use this service to get a test in order to travel to another country – you should pay for a private test.

We all need to play our part to protect the NHS Test and Trace service for those who really need it.

Important information to note:

- The booking portal can become very busy and there is very high demand for tests. If you don't have coronavirus symptoms, you should not be booking a test.
- Bookings will only become available after 8pm the night before the day you want to visit. Trying to book before this time may result in your closest test centre not being displayed.
- Testing centres operate by appointment only. One appointment is required per person, for example if there are four people in one car that want to be tested, four appointments must be booked.
- If you don't have an appointment you are likely to be turned away and told to make an appointment online.
- Appointments are for drive-in and walk-in. When booking a walk-in appointment, you will still be prompted to enter a car registration. Please select 'unknown' to proceed with your booking.
